Why Waste Tax Money?

ANOTHER SIDE TO PLAYGROUND PROPOSITION
SAPIENTLY PRESENTED

Ocean Beach, Calif., March 29.
Editor "The Beach News":

The school children of Ocean Beach now have one square block attached to their school for a playground. This should be sufficient. WHY spend $20,000 and probably much more before we are through for another block in the heart of this community just because some realtor, whose conscience is pricking him has offered to contribute a measly $2,000?

I would not care to live next to it, and residents who live in the vicinity tell me they will move away if the thing is put through.

If this were a slum or congested factory town instead of a beautiful beach resort, I would say, give them all the playground space you can, but to set apart the heart of this growing suburb for a playground—I AM NOT FOR IT. And there are others. The entire town is a wonderful playground. Why give our children artificial amusements when the real thing surrounds them on all sides? Let the children play on our wonderful beaches and hills, let them swim in the ocean (when Mrs. Sniff-Sniff, the O. B. bathing suit censor is not around) explore the wonderful caves and cliffs, and in general enjoy and get their amusement, exercise and health in these wonderful places almost in their door yard.

What do the parents want to do with their children, make cake eaters out of them? Why is it necessary to have a playground director at a BIG FAT SALARY to instruct our children how to play? Why fill them up full of synthetic sports and make them believe it's the real thing? Why standardize their amusements so that when Johnny Jones kicks up his legs, all the other little boys do the same?

When it comes to play, let the children use their own initiative and play when and where they wish at what they want to away from the school atmosphere. In other words, don't herd them like sheep.

And, getting right down to the sore spot, why burden the citizens of the town with heavy special taxes for this purpose?

The Lord knows, taxes are high enough and getting higher.

Yours truly,
H. J. DEVEREAUX.

LOUIS C. MAIRE
PLEDGES HIS INTEREST IN BEACH DISTRICTS

San Diego, Calif., April 2, 1925.
Editor "The Beach News,"
Ocean Beach, California.

Dear Sir:
May I use the columns of your paper to thank the voters of Ocean Beach for the splendid support accorded me in the primaries. If I am elected to the council on Tuesday, I feel I am in a position to truly represent them.

As an owner of beach property, and a part time resident of La Jolla, I feel that I have a knowledge and a real sympathy with the needs of that section of San Diego that extends from La Jolla to Point Loma. I do not believe in pre-election promises because too often they are broken, but I sincerely pledge myself to truly represent the beach section of San Diego.

Respectfully asking the support of Ocean Beach at Tuesday's election, I am

Sincerely,
LOUIS C. MAIRE.

FLEET DEPARTS
FOR SOUTH SEAS CRUISE
AND OTHER PORTS

At 4:45 o'clock yesterday morning the fleet of warships stationed in San Diego bay for battle practice during March, hoisted anchor and sailed away for San Francisco, Hawaii and Australia.

Three months will elapse before the bay again is visited by a large group of war craft. In June the Atlantic scouting fleet, returning to its base on the eastern seaboard, will put into San Diego for supplies and fuel.

About the middle of August three battleships of the Atlantic fleet will arrive here with 1,500 Annapolis midships. Following the departure of the midshipmen squadron the harbor again will be devoid of warships until the return of the fleet from Hawaii and Australia about Oct. 1.

ED. L. HEAD BOOSTER FOR BEACHES AND WARD SYSTEM

Ed. L. Head is the only candidate for city council nominated from the outside districts. He owns property here and understands the needs of the Beach communities.

Water is the great problem now and "Ed" Head understands the water situation and is a practical water man of many years of experience. He is Secretary of the Citizens Committee for the building of the El Capitan Dam and managed the fight last year, for the dam, which carried three to one.

Mr. Head was manager of the Swing for Congress campaign, which resulted in the re-election of Phil D. Swing by a vote of two to one.

He is President of the Greater San Diego Club of East San Diego, which organization carried the annexation of East San Diego to San Diego. He is chairman of the annexation of Normal Heights committee of the San Diego Realty Board and helped annex Normal Heights last Tuesday.

Ed. L. Head is a "Booster" and does things, say his friends who want him elected to help build the El Capitan Dam in the earliest period of time, so that we can have more and better water.

Mr. Head believes that the City Charter should be amended, so that we could have district representation, then you could elect men to office, from your district, that would know your wants and would be in a position to get results. "Ed" Head's supporters are proud of his firm stand for a ward system, which he asserts he will use every endeavor to achieve if elected as a member of the council.

Mis Josephine G. Seaman, county president of Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Edith Scott, county chairman of music, and Mrs. C. H. Schellbach, county chairman of literature, were guests at the recent meeting of the Pacific Beach Reading Club. Miss Seaman urged the matter of attendance at the county federation meeting to be held next month. She also urged the preservation of the California redwood trees.

ASK FOR THE PINK AND WHITE BALLOTS
NEXT WEDNESDAY

Polls for the school election are open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. In addition to the regular municipal ballot, voters must call for the pink ballot for the $400,000 bond issue and for the white ballot for the $100,000 tax for paving around the elementary schools. The voters must also sign the poll list.

The hours are not the same for the bond election as the city election and therefore voters are urged to visit the polls after 8 o'clock in the morning or else return to the polls after that hour to vote on the school bonds.

The $400,000 bond proposition is absolutely necessary to complete buildings that are required for the operation of the schools in these several units.

STANDS FOUR SQUARE AS SCHOOL CANDIDATE

As an independent candidate for the Board of Education, Earl L. Chappell has a mighty strong platform. He firmly believes in 40 year Buildings for our 40-year Bonds; no substitution for inferior materials in construction of buildings (let's take no chances with the lives of our children); a strict observance of all laws; equal chances to all, special privileges to none; more and better playgrounds—in this way alone can our children develop physically and mentally.

Mr. Chappell has hosts of friends who urge voters to put him on the school board and take politics out of the schools.

CENTENNIAL

The centennial year was ushered in at San Diego by a general jubilee. The few householders on Point Loma, Mrs. Brown and her small household of Yankee-Mexicanos and the venerable Tom Lush, fisherman without peer, over here on La Playa heard the midnight salute of 100 guns on the plaza. Perhaps they heard the ringing of bells in New Town. If the night was a windless one, no doubt they heard the ringing of those New Year's bells. No doubt there arose a great noise of response from the fortifications off Ballast Point; no doubt a great bonfire arose on Loma Heights—close to the "Old Spanish" light—where "Bob" Israel and his Yankee-Mexicano family were watching with eager interest the aspect of this night which brought the beginning of that wonderful year, the year that was to make things different and better.

In the year 1876 it took seventeen hours to go by the coast line stage from San Diego to Anaheim, where railroad connection was made for points north. "Alexis Ties" were popular as footgear for men, boys and youth; and the sizes of women's

VOTERS URGED TO SUPPORT BONDS FOR POINT LOMA "HI"

By Miss Kate Spani
Principal O. B. Public School

At the election next Tuesday Ocean Beach will be called on to vote bonds to complete our new junior high school on Point Loma.

Here are two excellent reasons for doing so—First, if we do not the pupils of this school, the greater number of which will be from Ocean Beach, will be greatly handicapped by not having adequate facilities for carrying out the course of study such as other junior highs of San Diego have.

Second, if the bonds fail to carry it will be necessary to call a special election for the same purpose which will cost the tax payers $8000.

Let us follow the example of our neighbor across the bay and vote the school bonds 10 to 1.

S. P. McMULLEN IS
"A MAN WHO KNOWS
YOU ALL THE TIME"

S. P. McMullen, candidate for common council at the election next Tuesday, has a record for more than twenty years of being a fighter for living wages and good treatment for the men who work for him.

For years McMullen was superintendent of the Cudahy Packing Company at Omaha, Neb. John M. Shea, now superintendent of grounds and buildings at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas, who worked under McMullen for six years says of him:

"McMullen can get more work out of a gang of men than any other man I have ever known in my life and AT THE SAME TIME EVERY WORKING MAN IS HIS FRIEND. He was known through the whole Cudahy system as the best superintendent for paying high wages that had ever been with the company."

While McMullen was chief of police of San Diego in 1918-19, he gave the men of the police department an eight-hour day and one day off in every seven, for the first time in the history of the department. He also obtained two raises in pay for them.

As the proprietor of a public market on Lower Fifth street for the past few years, McMullen has always paid above the union scale.

"A man who knows you all the time" is the phrase which his friends apply to him. They predict his election by a heavy vote.

OFFICIAL CANVASS
SHOWS BOND ISSUES
FAILED TO CARRY

At the primary election on March 24, neither the $60,000 library bonds nor the $130,000 park paving bonds carried. The $400,000 bond transfer for new water mains only won by a small margin.

The official canvass shows a total of 23,763 votes legally cast at the bond election, to which is added 623 void ballots, making a total of 24,386.

Two-thirds of this total would be 16,258, and two-thirds of the total voting for the bonds would be 16,842.

The vote for the library bonds was: Yes, 14,717; no, 6,641.

The vote for the park paving bonds was: Yes, 14,703; no, 5,981.

The vote for transferring the pipe bonds was: Yes, 16,974; no, 3,614.

HARRY K. WEITZEL HAS PROVED AN ABLE
CONCIENTIOUS COUNCILMAN

Harry K. Weitzel, candidate for re-election to the common council at the general election April 7, is fully deserving of the support of the citizens whom he has served during the last six years, his friends say.

Among Weitzel's outstanding achievements while a member of the city council was his action in initiating the movement which eventually led to the satisfactory settlement of the San Diego river watershed problem.

Weitzel also has played an active part in the development of harbor facilities and has worked hand in glove with those responsible for the establishment of the various naval activities that now line the shores of the San Diego bay.

Weitzel stresses the fact that he is essentially of the laboring class. He has been a resident of San Diego for more than 35 years and has been a successful merchant here for a quarter of a century.

As a candidate for re-election Councilman Weitzel has been endorsed by a number of organizations and individuals among the latter two men who ran for council at the primaries, Edmund C. Mitchell, the navy's candidate, and A. N. Gaston.

Weitzel, his friends say, has proved himself to be able, conscientious councilman and thoroughly deserving of the hearty support of all who are seeking to make San Diego the finest city on the Pacific coast.

Bottled From Cask of Ages

"THE WINE OF LIFE"
BY KATHERINE TINGLEY
APPEALS TO ALL

"I have looked over the blue waters of the Pacific; and watched the sun rise above the mountains and listened to mocking birds singing; and the beauty of the awakening world grew marvelous for me with suggestions of the hidden harmonies of life. Then I thought of humanity, and wondered what would happen could the veil of external things fall from before our eyes and reveal the glory of the spiritual laws of Life."

Thus, most exquisitely, under the initial caption of "Nature, the Mighty Mother," does Katherine Tingley begin her newest and best book "The Wine of Life," a splendid compilation from extemporaneous public addresses by the illustrious Leader of the International Theosophical Movement and from private instructions to her students.

"The Wine of Life" is an inspired and illuminating revelation, proclaimed by noted critics to have been written "not for an age, but for all time," with "its pages aglow with the light of living truth." In fact, some prophesy that it will prove to be the greatest book of the year and possibly of the century, as it is written for all humanity in language that everyone can understand. The book contains a masterful preface by the famous Talbot Mundy, who most aptly perorates that "the world is tired and thirsty and this wine is good."

Throughout "The Wine of Life" timely subjects have been beautifully treated by Katherine Tingley with soul-stirring simplicity, cleverly combined with the gracious grandeur of the classics. It is a book to be read and re-read and then read again.

It is with sincere appreciation that "The Beach News" staff acknowledge the receipt from Mme. Tingley of a complimentary copy of her latest and greatest work, "The Wine of Life," containing some 370 pages, handsomely illustrated and expensively bound direct from the Aryan Theosophical Press, Point Loma, Cal. It can be obtained from the Theosophical Publishing Company at $3.00 per copy, or ordered through book-sellers.

Katherine Tingley will speak Sunday afternoon on "The Abolishment of Capital Punishment," at the public Theosophical service to be held in the temple of peace, International Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma. A symposium on "Karma and the Forgiveness of Sins" will be given by a group of young men and women students of the Theosophical university. Music will be furnished by Raja Yoga students of the Isis Conservatory of Music.

CONFERENCE ANNOUNCED
FOR NEXT MONDAY
ON BUS SERVICE

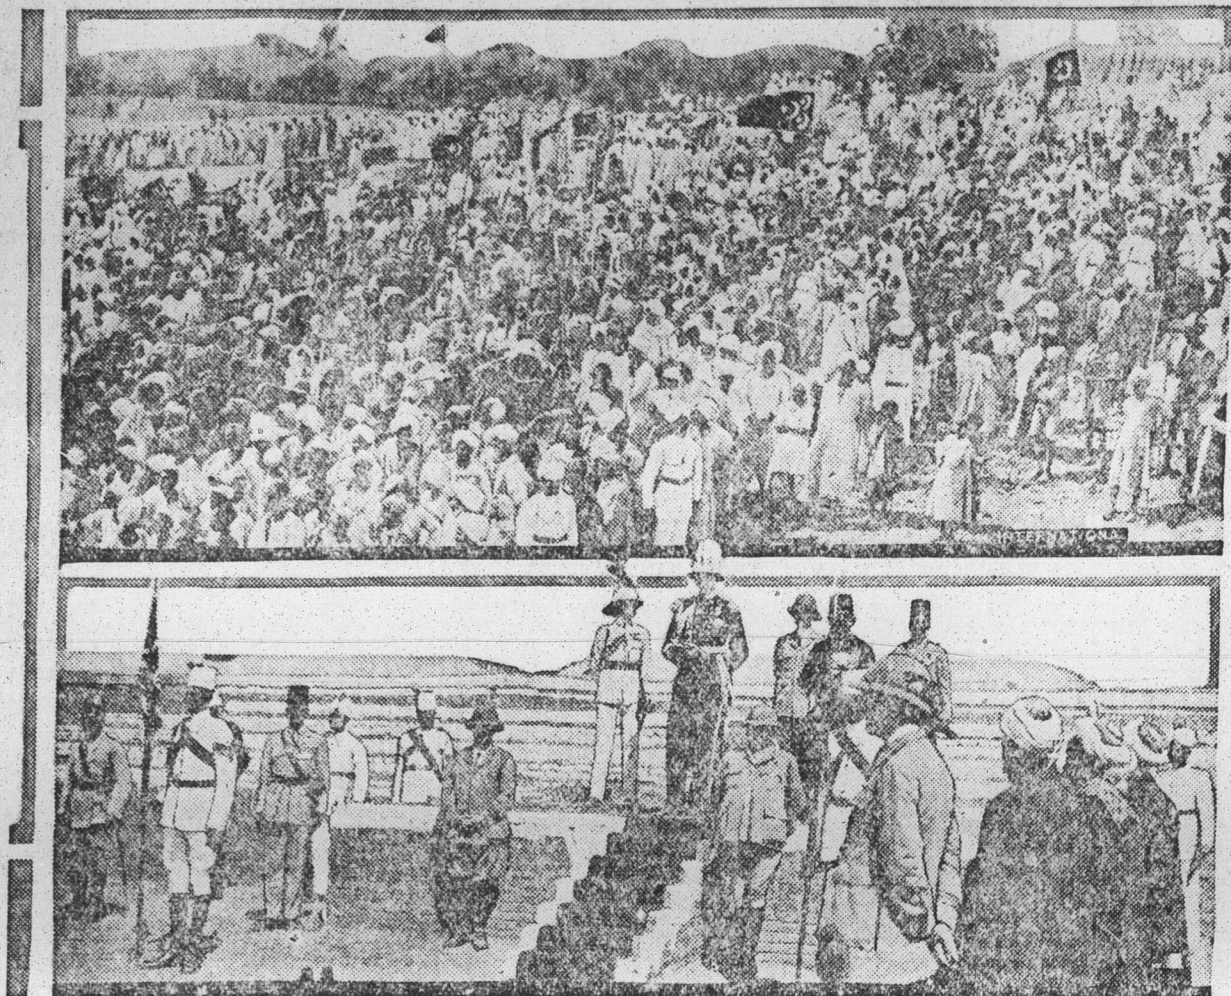

Recent notice by the street railway company of a curtailment in bus service on Voltaire street resulted in a protest by property owners and residents of that section in the form of a petition to the council against the proposed reduction in service. The matter has been referred by the council to a conference with the street railway officials and the protestants on next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The railway company asserts that the line is run at a loss and announcement was made that service after 6:40 p. m. would be discontinued at the beginning of this month.

Community Building

How Newspaper Helps to Build Community

"The outstanding character of the newspaper as a medium in community advertising," says a bulletin issued by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, "is stressed in the book 'Community Advertising,' by Don E. Mowry, chairman of the extension committee of the community advertising department of the Associated Advertising Clubs." Quoting from Mr. Mowry's book, the bulletin proceeds in part:

"The newspaper is specific circulation in a territory you desire to reach. One can buy the circulation in the communities or sections he desires to reach by using the newspaper mediums in that community or that section. The whole question is approached in much the same manner that one approaches a problem involving the sale of any commodity. Commercial successes can be credited to the newspaper by the hundreds. Communities are recognizing the value of the newspaper."

"The newspapers of the country are behind all community undertakings," the author continues. "They help build communities. They have a right to expect support from those community advertising organizations which are aiming to develop communities. The money raised through newspaper publicity, if given freely, should not be expended in other mediums exclusively to the detriment of newspaper advertising."

Fire Protection Now Built In With Lath

A new tendency has been recently noted in the construction of better-built homes. The particular development referred to is the use of materials offering greater resistance to fire. Among these are metal lath and plaster, which having been officially accorded the National Board of Fire Underwriters' full one-hour rating as respects their use as protection for lumber studs and joists for walls and floor, are now recognized by leading architects as the most economical form of built-in fire protection suitable for home construction.

Mindful that fires which originate in basements are most inaccessible and difficult of control, it was decided to use metal lath and plaster on that portion of the basement ceiling over the heating plant and boiler room. This construction will confine a fire to the room of origin for one hour, giving ample time for occupants to escape from the building to summon the fire department and extinguish the fire before it has had a chance to spread and involve the entire building.

Making for Prosperity

Every citizen wants to preserve what he thinks is good; every citizen wants to improve what he thinks is bad; every citizen wants to look after his own private interests. These three desires are mingled in everybody, but in different proportions. A preponderance of the first makes a reactionary; a preponderance of the second makes a progressive; a preponderance of the third makes a self-seeker and a place hunter. Undue excess of any of the three produces a more or less evil result. Excess of the third no doubt produces the worst result; yet the third desire lies at the very root of true prosperity.—Arnold Bennett.

Elevating Family Life

In the crowded life of today there is danger that we may lose sight of the high standards for the home and the stimulus they afford. We all do better when we have a high ideal to live up to. The Better Homes in America movement aims to give practical demonstrations of comfortable, healthful and attractive homes, and to direct attention to the means by which family life may be elevated. It recognizes, however, that it is not the wish, but the will; not sentimental desire, but vigorous, well-judged leadership, that moves our national life forward.—Secretary Hoover.

Citizens As Town Builders

Our industries and business enterprises must grow and prosper before our town can make headway. The idea is to boost industries and enterprises, and as they prosper, new industries and enterprises will locate here. Real town building is done through a citizenship boosting the industries and enterprises which are already located. Never knock a home enterprise. When you do you create a tendency to lower real estate values, salaries and every prospect your town has of growing.

Home Should Be One's Own

"No family," says the New York Herald-Tribune, "can ever feel for a rented house that deep-seated affection which is naturally developed for a home they own. There is little incentive to adorn and beautify the house and the yard which belong to another. But when the place that shelters the family group is their own every added beauty, every tree and shrub and flower-planted adds new charm to life and strengthens the ties that bind the happy hearts."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

Mary Graham Bonner

ORANGE TIME

Mildred was not old enough yet to go to school but she had lessons at home.

Every morning at half-past nine Mildred and her mother and a little friend named Alice did lessons together.

Mildred's mother taught and the other two studied.

Mildred's dolls sat up on the sofa at lesson time and learned all they could.

It was wonderful how much they learned.

They learned all that Mildred learned.

After lessons were over Mildred would ask Gyp, the dog, a question, and Gyp would answer in a little squeaky voice the right answer every time.

To be sure, Gyp was only a little dog filled with straw and sawdust but he understood even if Mildred had to speak for him.

It was Mildred's voice which answered the question but it was what Gyp wanted to say. Mildred simply spoke for him in the very tone in which he would have spoken had he been able to use words.

The big cloth cat could recite the alphabet and could spell his own name, too!

Mildred thought that was very smart.

And the rag doll could recite quite a little poetry.

Of course during lesson time they didn't speak. They only listened.

After Lessons.

But they took it all in as was clearly to be shown afterward when Mildred found out what they knew.

They learned to spell and to write a little and to recite and to do simple sums.

Lessons kept up until eleven o'clock and then they all had oranges.

They cut the oranges in quarters so they would last longer, though sometimes as a special treat they had an extra meal of orange-juice.

They called eleven o'clock "orange time."

When the clock struck eleven they would get up—sometimes right in the middle of a sentence—and say:

"Orange time!"

They always stopped on the very stroke of "orange time" just as they always began right on time, too.

Alice found lessons rather hard but she would say:

"When I grow up it won't matter as I shall be a wonderful circus rider."

"No one ever stops a circus rider to say:

"How much does two-and-two make?"

That thought used to comfort her a great deal when she couldn't get her lessons right.

But she tried to learn as much as she could as she wanted to be able to read her own name and what they said about her when the big signs would go up in the different towns to tell the people that 'Madame Alice, the famous rider, would be in town on the eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth.

"When you come to the circus you shall come free," Alice told Mildred.

That made Mildred very much pleased and it would be a great help, too.

She would be able to go to the circus each day and not worry over the expense.

No one could ever have enough money to pay to go to the circus three times in succession, but she would be able to go free.

So, each morning they studied, and the dolls looked on and listened so they could repeat the lessons later.

But the best time of all was "orange time" when the clock struck eleven and lessons were over and it was time to eat.

That was the best time of all.

They had decided that right away and they hadn't changed their opinions since!

Not by Invitation

Billy was getting unconsciously boisterous at the party, and the strict hostess was becoming annoyed.

"Willie," she said, gently but firmly, "unless you become more quiet I will have to send you home."

Billy looked at her soberly. His expression was like a somnambulist's after he has been told of his sleep walking. Then suddenly he brightened up with his boyish smile.

"No," he said, confidently though respectfully, "you can't send me home till 5 o'clock. My invitation read 'from 2 to 5.'"

WHAT'S THE USE

Give and Take

Your Last Name

IS IT GREGORY?

THIS name can simply be classified as being derived from a first name—a first name once more popular than it is today. Gregory is a name of Greek origin, coming from a late and corrupt Greek word meaning watchman. It was borne by several bishops and one pope in the early church and hence had popularity among Christians both in the East and West. Later it was borne by fifteen other popes who did more or less to popularize it.

It might be supposed that the Scotch name MacGregor was derived from this. But such is not probably the case. That name is derived from Grig or Galrig, meaning fierce. Probably where Gregory appears as a Scotch name it is really not from the old Greek Gregory but from Gregor or Grig.

The French form is Gregoire, which is found as a surname as well as first name, and the German Gregor and Gregus both have given surnames.

One of the interesting families of the name here is of French origin bearing originally the name Gregoire. The founder of this family was Rene Gregoire, a French soldier who settled on a coffee plantation in Santo Domingo with his bride, Agnes Roubeau or Robue. They had 13 children, all of whom save Caspar Ramsay Gregoire were killed in a great massacre. Caspar, who was born in 1785, escaped to New Jersey, where he settled down, eventually marrying a widow. He was persuaded to spell his name Gregory. He had two children—Henry Duval and Caspar Robue. Of these Henry Duval was a very able and well-known Greek and Latin scholar and an educator of note.

The other Gregoires seem to have come from England or Scotland. Elliot Gregory, an artist and writer of some note, was descended from Gilbert Gregory who came to this country from England, settling in Connecticut in 1640. James Fennimore Cooper was a great uncle of his. John Milton Gregory, born in 1822, came from English ancestors, settled in Norwalk, Conn., who probably came originally from Massachusetts and ultimately from England.

THINGS FOR OCCASIONS

GRATE the meat of a fresh coconut, from which the brown skin has been removed. Cook one tablespoonful of onion with one of butter, add one tablespoonful of flour and one teaspoonful of curry powder. Add one quart of milk, or half milk and half water and the coconut. Simmer a few minutes, add salt and pepper. The dried coconut may be used, if steamed and the sugar washed out.

Mock Woodcock.

Trim the crust from four slices of bread and toast a golden brown. Spread thickly with butter and a dozen thinly chopped anchovies. Pile on a warm dish and set in the oven. Beat the yolks of four eggs, add one cupful of cream and stir over a moderate fire until the mixture thickens. Pour quickly over the toast and send at once to the table.

Sweetbread Salad.

Drop sweetbreads into cold water, changing as often as the water discolors. Let them stand until quite white, then pull out all the tubes and put into a saucepan. Cover with fresh cold water, add a slice of onion, one small bayleaf, one blade of mace and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Heat quickly to the simmering point and simmer for twenty minutes. Drain and drop into cold water, letting stand for an hour. Wipe and cut into small pieces with a silver knife. Make a French dressing and pour over the sweetbreads, set away until ready to

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE LOVE OF SOLITUDE

THE truly great, the large-souled men and women who delight in going afieid in the mystic realm of thought, you will find are ardent lovers of solitude.

They are never lonely wherever they may be, for they have found the way to happiness by getting acquainted with themselves, whose companionship they prefer to any other.

Washington chose solitude when he prayed for strength and guidance in the forests; Lincoln knew nothing of loneliness when he lay upon the floor of his log cabin before the glow of a hearth fire, studying by its faint light and pondering the subject matter of his lessons; the late John Wanamaker solved his most difficult business problems in privacy.

The men and women of exclusion illuminate the world by dazzling achievements, born to them in their quiet hours of isolation. Their works flare up like magic torches to light the paths of the faltering and disheartened.

The greatest writers do their best work in solitude, often in the nighttime, when voices are hushed and silence is supreme.

And so do painters and presidents, kings and captains, students and inventors.

There is nothing more inspiring to thinking minds than quietude; nothing so grandly sublime and impressive as a canopy of stars in a still night when one is far away from the noisy haunts of men with one's own thoughts.

Only in solitude can man find himself. It was in solitude on the seashore that Demosthenes found himself, whence he came and stirred the people of his time with such oratory as had never been heard.

Real nobility of the soul dwells only in the men and women who care nothing for social gatherings and frivolities. Such men and women prefer to be alone with their muses, where they find their greatest pleasure in study, meditation and exploration.

The best in science, in art and in literature comes from the people who choose seclusion in preference to the glamour of bright lights and the folly of merry-making among turbulent crowds, barely able to find their way about, add up a column of figures, or to tell off-hand the number of feet in a square mile.

COUNSEL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I AIN'T just sure just how to do. Not all the time. You head into Some sort of situation nno. That ain't exactly like the rest; And that's the time you git your test And have to figger what is best.

But I git through. I'll tell you how: I ain't so big of brain and brow, I'm handier behind a plow; But ever since I was a lad Three counselors I always had That I could ask. And one was Dad.

And one was Mother—Mother she, She was the second of the three I always had to counsel me. Yes, three advised me ev'ry rod The road of life I had to plod. The third? The third of these was God.

Of course, my mother's gone, I know, And Dad before her, long ago, But things are still exactly so As when I used to come at night And kneel there by the candlelight And ask them three to set me right.

I hope—I know—it ain't a sin; But, any worry I am in, I git down on my knees ag'in And pray, just as I always had When I was just a little lad. To God, and Mother, too, and Dad. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lysander John Appleton
Mrs. Lysander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

A WHITE sign post similar to those which railroads put up at country crossings, has been erected in Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's back yard, ten feet from the kitchen door, and it bears these mystic words, "Stop and Whistle." The sign is a warning to the ice man, the butcher's boy, and the man who delivers the groceries, and the farmer with turnips and eggs, that they must stop and whistle here, thus giving Mrs. Appleton time to put on some clothes and save them from the terrible spectacle of catching her cooking, ironing and washing in just two pieces all told.

When Daysey Mayme Appleton does anything, she leaves nothing to regret, nothing undone and this explains why the Memory Book she started a month ago weighs fifteen pounds. Other girls pressed flowers, samples of their dresses, locks of hair, etc., in their Memory Books, but Daysey Mayme once found a horse-shoe at the close of a pleasant day, and put that in her Memory Book as a souvenir; also a fence railing to mark the day when she sat on the fence with the preacher's assistant, and the pen with which she refused seventeen proposals of marriage, and similar tokens calculated to awaken memories dear.

When Lysander John Appleton falls sick he knows what is expected of him and does his duty like a man, telling every caller that his wife feeds him too well. (Copyright by George Matthew Adams)

BOOK NOTES

By Winifred Davidson

The American people like fun.
"The Illiterate Digest" by Will Rogers is the big book sensation of the present moment. No non-fiction book —not even Papini's "Life of Christ" or H. G. Wells' "Outline of History" has exceeded the sales that this book of rich nonsense enjoys. The "Illiterate Digest" last month sold better than any of the cross-word puzzle books and better than any novel except Mrs.
Sedgwick's "The Little French Girl".Also we are interested in people on the stage. One of the important books of the hour is "The Sins of St.
Anthony." Its author is Charles Collins, who is dramatic editor of the Chicago Evening Post. Mr. Collins has brought together a collection of laughable, searching, moving, sometimes tragic love stories of the stage, and with a touch that in its tenderness and sympathy has not been equalled elsewhere has revealed a wonderful understanding of actors, actresses, managers, directors and stage-hands that amounts to marvel.Another book that buyers of books are seizing upon avidly is Roland Young's "Actors and Others." This too has to do with persons in public life. Better than his "Beggars on Horseback," some consider it. It has to do with Rupert Hughes, Charlie Chaplin, Baby Peggy, Daniel Frohman and other such celebrities and is delightfully readable.

H. Dowell, the popular labor candipride to the strong planks in his an-

URGENT REPETITION OF WONDERFUL LANDSLIDE FOR JULIA PICKETT

It is indeed very gratifying to the many friends of Julia Pickett to see the result of the wonderful landslide for their popular candidate, at the primary. It only goes to prove that when the public has an opportunity to support a person of excellent qualifications and ideals, linked with business and ability, they are quick to endorse such a candidate. The public sees in Miss Pickett one eminently qualified to guide the future welfare of their children.

Another gratifying incident in Miss Pickett's campaign was the way in which the newspapers so graciously

PLEASING PROGRAM

BY GARDEN DEPARTMENT

OF WOMEN'S CLUB

The Garden Department of the Ocean Beach Women's Club will meet at 1955 Abbott Street next Monday night, April 6th, at 8 o'clock. All women living in the vicinity of Ocean Beach who are interested in gardens are invited to attend, whether they are members of the Club or not.

Mrs. L. R. Cornman, chairman of the Garden Department of the Oneira Club of Normal Heights, and Miss Ann a Worden, who organized this very successful department of the club, will be the guests of the Ocean Beach Club and will tell of the work which the Oneira Club has accomplished. Miss Agnes Ellis will preside as chairman of the Garden Department of the local club and Mrs. Ernest P. Boy, whose flowers have several times lent charm to the club meetings will act as secretary.

One of the interesting features of the Garden Department will be the arrangements for the exchange of plants, seeds and cuttings. Almost everyone who has anything at all in her garden has too much of something which she would be glad to exchange for something she has admired in a neighbor's garden. The Club aims to make this possible.

Regular meetings of the Garden Department will probably be held weekly, with two evening meetings in the club room and two afternoon meetings a month there or in some member's garden. Membership in the Ocean Beach Woman's Club entitles one to membership in the Garden Department without further dues.

PUBLIC BAPTISM AT TRINITY MISSION

Two children were given a public baptism at Trinity Mission by Dr. George Wallace on Sunday morning, March 22. The seven-year-old son of Mrs. E. F. Reich of 4727 Newport avenue was baptized John Ernest Reich, and the name of Mary Phyllis Parker was given to the infant daughter of Mrs. Lillian W. Parker of Long Branch avenue.

GOING TO MASSACHUSETTS

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cogswell, of 2239 Seaside street, expect to leave April 16 for their home in Somerville, Mass.

VISITOR FROM WASHINGTON

L. C. Brown, of Aberdeen, Wash., arrived here last Tuesday and is a guest for several days at the home of Mrs. L. F. Brown on Saratoga avenue. He is the son of the late Louis F. Brown and this is his second visit to Southern California.

COUNCILMAN BRUSCHI STRONGLY ENDORSED BY LABOR AND NAVY

Hearty endorsement has been given by the San Diego Truckmen's Association to the candidacy of Virgil Bruschi for re-election to the city council. The support of "Dad" Bruschi by the naval colony is also urged by Edmund C. Mitchell, who made a good run as the navy candidate at the primaries and has publicly asserted that Bruschi has always proved to be a good friend of the service. "Dad" also believes in beach progress and is proud of his representation as a friend to working folks.

endorsed her success. They recognized her ability and they gave their whole-hearted support, showing that there is a strong public desire for the best interests of our schools.

However, we wish to utter just a word of warning. Julia Pickett, undoubtedly the popular choice of the community, is not yet elected. There are indications of a light vote at the General Election on April 7th, and a popular candidate is always in danger in a light vote, where the machine candidates get out their full strength. We urge Miss Pickett's friends to go to the Polls and see that she is elected.

STORY TELLING FOR BEACH

KIDDIES NEXT WEDNESDAY

A treat is in store for Ocean Beach kiddies next Wednesday afternoon, April 8th, when there will be story hours in three different parts of the community. All children living at the beach are invited to come with their parents to one of the story hours.

The Ocean Beach Women's Club has arranged to have the "Hansel and Gretel" Story Teller's League, which is a department of Community Service, send a story teller in costume to Ocean Beach for the afternoon.

The first story hour will be for the littlest tots, those under seven, at the home of Mrs. Lannis A. Parker, 4811 Santa Cruz (end of the car line). The stories will be told here at 4:30 o'clock.

Children from seven to nine, inclusive, are invited, with their parents, to Mrs. Roy Cline's home, 4800 Newport Street (corner of De Foe) at 5 o'clock, where the story teller will make her next stop.

Boys and girls over nine are invited to her stories which will interest them particularly, at the home of Mrs. George Wallace, 4826 Voltaire Street, at 5:30 o'clock.

A special invitation is extended to parents to come with their children to hear the stories told. They will be interested in the work the League is doing to help mothers in telling stories to their children.

There will be no charge of any kind. The Women's Club and Community Service invite everyone to attend.

POPULAR NEIGHBORS WELCOMED BACK

We are happy to welcome back to Point Loma Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Stanwood, popular neighbors on Cabrillo Terrace. Mrs. Stanwood has been in Nebraska for a year and more, in order to be with her son, Mr. Henry McKillip, but the lovely sunshine of "home" has called them all back, Mrs. McKillip with them, and all their friends join in wishing Mrs. Stanwood a speedy recovery from her present ill health.

COULDN'T RESIST THE LURE OF LOMA

Mr. and Mrs. John Kelley of Clove Street, and their house guest, Mrs. J. Leonard Mahoney, are rejoicing over the arrival of Mr. Mahoney from Chicago. Again the lure of California, of Point Loma in particular, has drawn another business man out of the whirl of life in the east. We trust he may find things to his entire liking here, and be able to remain permanently.

THAT LITTLE LAUGH OF HERS

By MARY M. RAYNAL

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

How fair those locks which now the light wind stirs! What eyes she has, and what a perfect arm! And yet methinks that little laugh of hers— That little laugh—is still her crowning charm. Where'er she passes, countryside or town, The streets make festa and the fields rejoice. Should sorrow come, as 'twill to cast me down, Or Death, as come he must, to hush my voice, Her laugh would wake me just as now it thrills me. That little giddy laugh wherewith she kills me. —Marot.

PROFESSOR HILTON, known in college circles as "Old Bones," was witnessing, for the first time in years, a comic opera. The spectacular, the audacious cleverness, so long undreamed of in his philosophy, dawned for him as a fresh discovery. He forcibly held his feet to the ground to keep them from beating time to the music. His near-sighted eyes peered delightedly at the maze of lights. His hands went together with almost childlike glee when the queen of the opera glittered before the footlights.

She was a charmingly rounded bit of femininity, this comic-opera queen, welcoming her applause naively; not much voice, but how she could laugh! In the midst of the hollow stage laughter, hers gurgled out like the apothecary of eternal youth. She laughed as children should, but rarely do. Laughed with an infectiousness that shook her audience until they wiped their eyes and held their sides in an intoxication of mirth. In her laughter was the liquidness of mountain streams, the ecstasy of mating birds, the giddy irresponsibility of lambs on the meadow green.

"She must be very good in order to laugh so," thought Old Bones—only the superlatively innocent could be so joyous. He left the city with the echo of this laughter in his ears. He went back to his laboratory, toiling in its smelly depths, but his heart had escaped from the test tubes. As he toiled, there would ring through his brain an elfin laughter, a whirling, maddening thing, but with it all exquisitely dainty.

Less than forty were Old Bones' years, but he had been born old, the product of academic shades. The depths of his college's intellectuality were of his digging, but he was helpless in their times of merrymaking. Eloquent in his classroom, he was dumb before a slip of a girl. He had never known a woman intimately, was not even blessed with the memory of a boyish sweetheart. But at last he was becoming humanized. He astonished the faculty hostesses by accepting their invitations, and listening with intensive earnestness to the mirthful sounds around him. Sometimes, amid much artificial laughter, he caught a note of that laughter which rang continually in his heart.

Sometimes when the faculty children, chubbily awkward in their little coats and leggings, were playing in the dead leaves, Old Bones would lean on a near-by stone wall listening to the childish glee, striving to break, by the nearness to small human kind, the elfin charm which bound him.

By midwinter the opera was on the road, billed to play in a neighboring town. Professor Hilton, under cover of attending a convention of the Scientific society, was about to hear again that laughter. He had schooled himself to disappointment. He told himself that it was impossible for her to have retained her spontaneity, that playing twice daily through a season would necessarily tend to the mechanical.

The local playhouse lacked the glamour of the metropolitan theater, the chorus was diminished; but there was the same old irresistible quality in the notes which the little queen flung out, notes that rollicked and caroled together like winged creatures. It was as if Balder the Beautiful had been reincarnated; flowers should have sprung up in her path.

When the curtain fell for the last time Old Bones, lured by her witchery, made his way behind the scenes. For a few precious moments the world was shut out. Dumb, as he always was with women, his worship blazed in his eyes, and she, instantly responsive, mocked and caressed him in turn with waves of low, wondrous laughter. Again Old Bones returned to his test tubes, and was faithful to them through the remainder of the bleak days. But when the leaves began to green, and the birds to mate, he was unaccountably called South. The gaunt professor was flying on an errand that would have shocked the most irresponsible of his freshmen. He was going to the queen of a comic opera, he was going to say to her:

"Little child, leave your false world, where they gild the lily and paint the rose. Come with me to my serene land of truth and purity."

The train set itself to the measure of Locker's paraphrase of one of Marot's epigrams:

Should sorrow come, as 'twill, to cast me down,

Or Death, as come he must, to hush my voice,

Her laugh would wake me just as now it thrills me.

He could not fancy himself so dead that he would not stir with her laughter. Arrived at last in a far southwestern town, quivering with the sense of her nearness, a hot pang of shame shot through him at sight of the posters—his future wife prancing in tights.

He was barely in time for the rising of the curtain. To his dismay, an understudy was bowing over the footlights, an understudy whose effort to imitate that laughter was as hideous as a jay's emulation of a linn.

At the box office he was told of the sudden illness of the leading lady, and given the name of her hotel. Hastening thither, consumed with an anxiety almost maternal in its intensity, he paused at a florist's long enough to purchase an enormous bunch of roses.

After much difficulty an interview was secured with the manager of the opera company. The man was heavy, sullen, noncommittal, but the professor was in the habit of firing leading questions to be answered in manly fashion. The manager, pushed to the wall, finally blurted out:

"No, she's not dangerously ill—just a tumble from the water wagon. Fact is, Dotty's been hitting the ground in high places all winter. This is the first time she's been too full to go on, though, and," threateningly, "it'll be the last!"

The professor went white: "Dropping all innuendoes, will you please state in plain English just what you mean?"

"In plain English," brutally, "she is drunk." The roses slid to the floor. The professor's lank figure collapsed. Buttoning his old-fashioned coat around him, he went out into the night, in his heart the agonizing prayer that there might be stilled for him that little giddy laugh wherewith she had killed him.

Lucky He Didn't Know That Gun Was "Empty"

In Nevada in the early eighties it was the rule for a man to "tote a gun." But Henry Gillis was an exception; to him, undersized though he was, a gun was a nuisance. Only on rare occasions when he drove the nine buckboard loaded with the week's clean-up did he carry a six-shooter.

One day when he was about to transport bullion from a mine in the Comstock Lode country to the nearest railway station a burly tramp asked permission to go along. Suspecting nothing, Gillis gave the stranger a lift.

All went well for an hour or so. The tramp seemed preoccupied and taciturn. Gillis himself was never talkative. After crossing part of the desert the road climbed through a rugged foothill country. At a point where it came out on the face of a precipice the tramp glanced furtively in both directions.

"Out of the corner of my eye," said Gillis, in telling of the experience, "I saw the stranger stealthily draw a big clasp knife from his trousers' pocket. Intently he watched me while I appeared to be occupied with the reins. The weather had been cold, so we had the lap robe well over our knees.

"Driving with my left hand, I suddenly reached under the robe for my gun, which I carried under my left leg. As the tramp opened his knife with its six-inch blade I raised the hammer of my pistol and held the gun close to his body. We exchanged glances for what seemed like a minute. At last his eyes dropped. Nervously fumbling in his pocket, he got out a chunk of tobacco, cut off a piece and offered it to me. I lowered my gun, and we reached the depot without further trouble. Not a word had been spoken.

"I delivered the bullion, which amounted to about $16,000, and told the agent about the tramp. Listening he absently toyed with my six-shooter. Suddenly he 'broke' the gun, exposing the cartridge chambers. All were empty.—Youth's Companion.

Woman Tells How She Keeps a Brave Heart

Whenever I get in a fog and can't see clear, and so tired out I can't eat and plumb run down, I say to myself: "You folks ain't ever flunked yet, and you keep your head up where the Lord put it." He put it up.

Folks see me laugh a lot. I do. I couldn't learn to play on the piano, though I'm clean crazy about music. I couldn't learn none of the things I yearned for inside, so I said to myself: "You learn to laugh hearty"; and somehow it's helped a lot, laughin' has. There's many a time I done it to keep tears back.

Ain't nobody but has tears to shed some time or other. But 'tain't no use in keepin' a tank of 'em to be tapped at every slipup. When I get so I can't keep mine back any longer I goes to the wood house and locks the door and has it out. But that's just when I'm tired out and there don't seem nothin' ahead.

I tell the Lord about it. Tell Him there ain't nothin' human can help. Just Him. And if He don't, I'm done for. Ain't ever seen a time yet that when I come right down to it and says, "Lord, I need You," that the help ain't handed out. I mean help to take hold again and keep on laughin'.—Kate Langley Bosher, in "Miss Gobbie Gault."

Queer Siamese Delicacy

A missionary returned from Siam tells of a queer food the natives are very fond of. Bee-bread, made from wild bees with the larvae in it, is broken up and cooked until it is a pulpy mass. "It is really quite delicious," says the missionary, "with a sweetish nut flavor. If one didn't happen to know the ingredients he would probably take a second helping."

Bottle Insulator for Your Lead-In Simple, Economical Bushing That Can Be Easily Made at Home.

BY HARRY R. LUBCKE

The efficiency of many good aerials is decreased by improper insulation of the lead-in.

It is desirable to have the down-lead in the clear as much as possible. It should be strung so that it is the shortest and most direct path from the antenna proper to the set. For highest efficiency it should come near the building only once, the point at which it enters. At this point we must be scrupulously careful about the insulation.

Fig. 1 shows an economical bushing that can be made by any one and still meets all the requirements for a low loss insulator. The insulating portion consists of a large bottle, 12 inches or more in height, the bottom of which has been cut off. This fits in the support "S" and projects through the roof as shown.

It is essential that the bottle be at least 12 inches high because the larger it is the longer the leakage path will be from the lead-in wire to the roof. The bottom can be removed easily by the following process: A scratch is first made at the place where the bottle is to be cut with a file moistened with turpentine. Then a piece of iron wire about one-eighth of an inch in diameter is bent to conform with the curvature of the bottle, heated to redness and applied at the scratch. This is shown in Fig. 2. In a moment a crack will start directly under the wire. The wire is again heated and applied successively until a crack has been made all around the bottle. The bottom will then fall off.

The bottom piece of the support has a hole in it slightly smaller than the

How Heated Wire Is Applied to Cut the Bottle.

Inside of the bottle. It is held in place by two triangular-shaped side pieces and an end as shown.

A cork is used to hold the lead-in wire as it enters the bushing. A hole should be burned through it with a hot wire of the same size as the lead-in. When the affair is in place the cork and the junction between the bottle and the roof should be coated with asphaltum roofing cement to make it watertight.

If it is desired to bring the lead-in through the side of the building a hole should be cut of such size that the bottle fits snugly. This should be backed up by a board with a slightly smaller hole than the inside of the bottle. The bottle can also be held by a board of such length that it extends all the way across a window and about six inches in width. The board can then be put in the upper part of the window frame and held in place by pushing up the sash.—New York Sun.

Sheet Brass Is Used in Making Switch Stop

Most radio dealers carry regular switch stops which can be placed at each end of the row of switch points to keep the lever from moving too far. Sometimes there is not room on the panel for these regular stops. An easy way to make one is to cut a small rectangle from a piece of sheet brass and drill a hole near one end, large enough to pass over the stem of the switch point. After you have bolted the switch point to the panel, it is a simple matter to bend up the end of the brass against the side of the switch point to form a stop for the lever.

Try Interchanging Tubes

A set that is equipped with three or more tubes will work better if the tubes are changed from one socket to another. The amplification factor of a given type of tube is generally said to be the same for all tubes of this type, but actually the amplification factor, like other individual characteristics of a tube, varies slightly for each tube.

Feel Achy After Every Cold?

ARE you lame and stiff; tired and nervous—constantly troubled with backache and twinges of pain? Have you given any attention to your kidneys? Grip, colds and chills, you know, are apt to be mighty hard on the kidneys. And if the overtaxed kidneys fail to properly filter the blood, impurities accumulate and throw the whole system out of tune. Then may follow daily backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

In such conditions a good stimulant diuretic should help the kidneys flush the poisons out of your system. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Are recommended by folks you know. Ask your neighbor!

A California Case

J. B. Smith, retired blacksmith, 99 W. Villa St., Pasadena, Calif., says: "My kidneys acted in such a way, there wasn't a night I didn't have to get up. The secretions burned in passage. There was a lameness through my back and when I stooped, a sharp, quick pain took me through my kidneys. Doan's Pills regulated my kidneys and drove the pains from me."

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

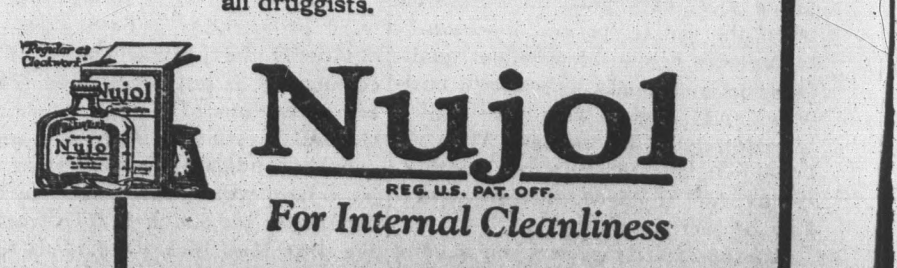

WHEN you are constipated, poisons are formed in the accumulated food waste, and reach all parts of the body. The first results, headaches, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness," etc., serve as warnings of graver diseases to follow if this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste, and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

TUNIC ENSEMBLE A FAVORITE; PICTURESQUE JUVENILE FROCKS

IT WOULD seem as if all fashionable womankind is destined to be tunic-frocked this season. In these two-piece ensembles, stylists recognize their opportunity to give expression to a wealth of ideas, and surely, judging from advance spring showings, they are making the most of it.

Creative genius is crowning itself with glory, finding in the separate tunic and skirt a source of never ending inspiration for effectively combining fabrics, exploiting color and in-stitch on silken frocks—this is fashion's promise to "good little girls" this season. It is a happy inspiration, this of trimming frocks for little tots in embroideries which have for their theme Mother Goose and Kate Greenaway figures. Not only is this method of trimming a success from the artistic viewpoint, but to the children these pictorial decorations serve as a constant source of entertainment.

While the frock of silk which little daughter is wearing in the picture dulging in intriguing design. To women of fashion these ensemble costumes are of special appeal, for a skirt and tunic which may be worn together or in other combination at will, is indeed a happy possession.

The vogue for gay prints is most opportune when it comes to designing tunic ensembles. These fantastically patterned materials, especially printed crepes, make up handsomely with plain silks or satins, using the latter for the skirt or costume slip over which is posed the below-the-knee length blouse. The solid-colored fabric also serves as trimming in manner such as the picture herewith defines.

If one so desires, costume slips with plaited flares may be bought separately, and for the home dressmaker this simplifies the making of these two-piece costumes. Furthermore, it is an incentive to own a number of slips, thus varying color effects and general effect.

The model illustrated features an interesting idea, that of trimming the underarm seam. One of fashion's diversions, this season, is to elaborate herewith would be pretty even if it did not have an embroidery design of windmill and cunning child figures, anyone who has an eye for the beautiful appreciates at a glance that these pictures, done with colorful floss in outline stitch, add a distinctive charm to the model.

The dress here illustrated happens to be silk navy with an orange border. The idea could be carried out every bit as successfully in gingham, chambray or fine linen.

The fact that there is a contrasting border should be taken note of by the mother who plans to make a dress for her little girl similar to the one pictured. Borders of one kind or another are conspicuously a method of trimming this season, not only for children's frocks, but for those of grownups as well.

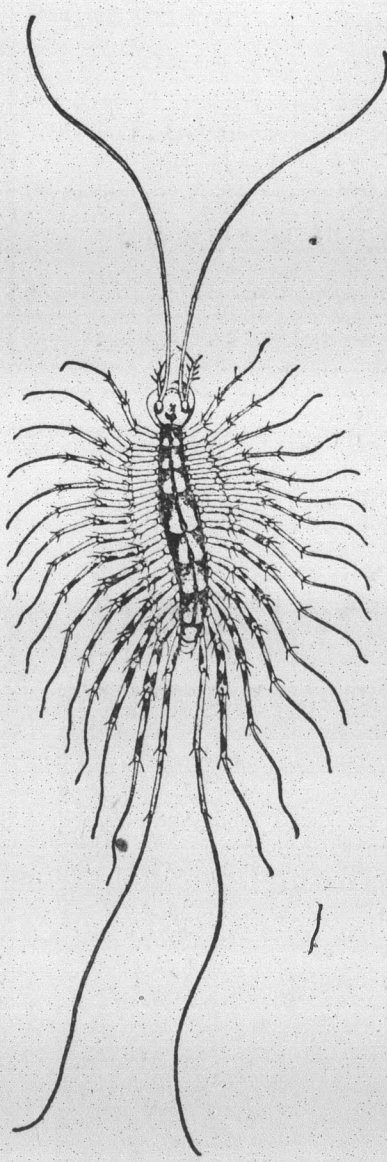

Since fine handwork of all sorts distinguishes little girl's frocks more than ever this season, it is an incentive to mothers to "do it now" ready for coming summer wear. Lavender is again a favorite color for children's dresses in simple lines and extend un-

INSECTS DESTROYED BY HOUSE CENTIPEDE

Looked Upon as Aid in Keeping Pests in Check.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The house centipede, which is not a true insect, but a species of Myriapoda, or "thousand legs," is a creature of the damp, and sometimes becomes amazingly abundant in bathrooms, moist closets, cellars, conservatories, and near heating pipes. While its appearance and rapid, darting movements make it quite alarming to many people, it is really very cleanly in its habits, and aids in keeping down the number of such pests as house flies, roaches, moths, and other insects. Very few cases are recorded of these centipedes having bitten any human being. If pressed with the bare foot or hand, or if caught between sheets in beds, they might bite in self-defense, as would almost any other insect. The few cases on record where this has happened indicate that severe swelling and pain may result from the poison injected. Prompt dressing of the wound with ammonia is recommended.

Were it not for its unpleasant appearance and the rather poisonous nature of its bite, the house centipede might be looked on as an aid, in keeping other pests in check. To control it, all individuals that are seen should be destroyed. All moist places where centipedes would naturally hide should be frequently inspected and dusted freely with fresh pyrethrum powder.

CHOOSING BEDDING QUITE IMPORTANT

Pride of Careful Housekeeper and Is Essential.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Good bedding is not only the pride of all careful housekeepers, but an essential part of a comfortable bed. It should include, says the United States Department of Agriculture, a light-weight mattress pad, sheets, pillowcases, blankets, a comfortable and a simple, washable spread.

A washable mattress pad, which may be bought ready-made, or made at home of muslin and cotton batting, not only protects the mattress, but improves the smoothness of the bed under the lower sheet. An old light-colored quilt or cotton blanket may be used for the purpose.

The quality of the sheets and pillowcases depends on the amount one wishes to invest in them. Considering only the materials and time used, ready-made sheets and pillowcases are often more economical than those made at home, but the latter have the great advantage of being made to fit a particular bed. Both sheeting and pillowcases come in various widths, and the latter is also woven in tubular form so that no side seam is needed. Sheets should be from 24 to 36 inches wider and longer than the mattress, so that the ends and sides can be generously tucked in and the top of the upper sheet turned down to keep the blankets clean. The hem at the top of the sheet should be at least 2½ inches, and at the bottom from ¾ to 1 inch. Machine hemstitching makes a pretty finish for the pillowcases and the wider hem of a sheet, and in many communities is done for a small charge per yard.

Blankets containing a large proportion of good quality wool which has been heavily napped are generally considered more comfortable and also most satisfactory if given the proper care. Many reliable manufacturers state the percentage of wool on the card attached to the blanket. Cotton blankets are now made so that when new they are as warm as wool, and they are much less expensive. They tend, however, to become matted with wear and washing, which renders them less warm. Many power laundries can make them fluffy again, but this wears out the foundation fabric. Blankets without colored borders generally keep their shape better than those with them, and also there is no risk of color fading or running, but if one likes the touch of color, it is best to make sure that the border is of the same quality of wool as the rest of the blanket.

Comfortables are frequently needed during very cold weather. Both cotton and wool batting are used as the filling in comfortables, and though more expensive than cotton, wool is warmer in proportion to the weight, and easier to clean. Either kind of comfortable may be bought covered with cheesecloth ready for the outer cover of any pretty lightweight material. Comfortables may also be bought ready-made.

Striped dimity bedspreads with pillow shams to match are dainty, easy to launder, durable, and not expensive. Marseilles, crocheted, and other specially woven materials are also used for counterpanes or spreads. If possible, it is well to have two spreads for each bed, so that they may be changed frequently.

Famous Americans Born in Month of February

Children born in February have all the odds of obtaining greatness in their favor. Figures compiled by Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, director of the Hall of Fame, show that more men and women enrolled in the hall were born during February than in any other month. Twelve of the sixty-three persons who have niches in the hall had their birthdays that month.

They were Mark Hopkins February 4; William Tecumseh Sherman, February 8; Daniel Boone, February 11; Peter Cooper, February 12; Abraham Lincoln, February 12; George Peabody, February 13; Alice Freeman Palmer, February 21; George Washington, February 22; James Russell Lowell, February 22; Emma Willard, February 23; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, February 27, and Mary Lyon, February 28.

Doctor Johnson's list showed that April was second with eight Hall of Fame members. June was last with only two.

Dolls of Long Ago

Every once in a while these modern days, the people of the world discover that some of their vaunted inventions are not so new after all.

Dr. George Byron Gordon, director of the University of Pennsylvania museum, said that the museum today contains specimens of dolls dating from 3600 B. C.

In one collection there is a set of dishes—doll dishes—dating from 4500 B. C. There are toy chariots, toy horses, toy drivers.

Hammer Drives Screws

Hammer-driven screws are the latest time-savers for work in hard metal and composition materials. A hole of the correct size is drilled in the material. Into this the top of the new type screw is inserted. As it is hammered, the screw cuts and twists into the material. The extreme hardness of the screw and the angle of its threads make it turn as it is driven.—Popular Science Monthly.

Missed His Offspring

A farmer sent the following letter to the admiralty:

"My youngest son has gone away and enlisted in the navy. I can't get him out. Won't you help me? He is a good boy and I was bringing him up for my own use."

DAILY CLEANING FOR PLUMBING FIXTURES

Farm Woman at Work in Improved Kitchen.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) All bathroom and sink fixtures should be cleaned daily, the United States Department of Agriculture reminds the housekeeper in a new Farmers' Bulletin, 1426, Farm Plumbing, in which directions are given not only for the care of plumbing but for its installation on a simple scale in rural homes.

No sharp or pointed utensil, sandpaper, coarse, gritty powder, scouring soap, oil, acid, or acid preparation should be used because they tend to injure the thin shiny glaze, literally the skin of enamel and vitreous wares. The treatment should be much the same as with table crockery, relying mainly on soap and hot water. As needed a very fine specially prepared cleaning powder costing 25 cents for one-pound cans may be used to remove grime and stains. A small quantity of the powder should be sifted on a damp cloth and the fixture be wiped out or lightly scoured, and rinsed with clean, warm water. A little kerosene on a cloth is sometimes used to remove paint and grease. Soap, water, and a brush are sufficient ordinarily for cleaning water closets. If a vitreous bowl has become badly incrustated, discolored, and foul smelling, a small quantity of chemical closet cleaner may be sifted into the water in the trap, be allowed to stand several hours and then be flushed away.

General Election April 7

Mrs. Herbert Sheets of Quinton, N. J., has a cook stove on which she estimates she has cooked more than 65,000 meals in 62 years of wedded life.

Mrs. Hilda Jacobson of New York, who weighed 500 pounds, died recently in the arms of 10 policemen while they were carrying her to an ambulance.

ADVANTAGES IN KEEP-ING JACOB WEINBERGER
ON THE SCHOOL BOARD

Relying on what has happened during the past six years in which time the schools of San Diego have increased their daily attendance from 16,000 to 26,500, the board of education is preparing for at least as big an increase during the next six years.

This fact makes the candidacy of Jacob Weinberger for re-election to the board of education extremely important to the people of San Diego. Weinberger has been a member of the board for six and a half years and had an important part since the board began in 1920. In that time, two new senior high schools, three new junior high schools, six new elementary schools, thirteen additions and improvements to old buildings, and eighty acres of playgrounds have been added to the school system to keep pace with its growth. Classes have been reduced from 50 to 60 to 30 to 35 pupils. Plans are being worked out for many more additions and improvements.

In the face of the future tasks of the board of education, Weinberger's ability and experience in school affairs should prove of advantage in keeping him in office where the taxpayer and the parent can benefit from his knowledge. Friends of the San Diego schools who have this purpose in mind are making an active campaign for Weinberger and predict his re-election.

"HANSEL AND GRETEL"
RETURN THIS MONTH

Mme. Essy Bouchard-Irnes and John L. Morgan will again sing the title roles in the grand opera, "Hansel and Gretel," which is to be presented Friday evening, April 24, and Saturday matinee, April 25. All of the members of the cast appearing in the original production a year ago will appear in the presentation at the Spreckels theater. Rehearsals by the principals for the opera have been going on for several weeks under the direction of Mme. Laura de Turczynowicz. The community service committee in charge of the preparations for the production announces that the presentation last year will be surpassed by the production this month.

A girl in Colby, Kan., had special Valentine cards printed with the words, "You're the nicest boy I know," but only ordered 25 of them.
